RIPON GLEE CLUB.

Will be at the Congregational Church on the Evening of the Tenth of April.

The Ripon Glee Club is now engaged in making a tour of the state and the members of the Congregational church have been fortunate in having secured the club to give one of their concerts at the church in this city on the 10th of April. The club contains some masters of music and where they have given entertainments so far the press speaks very highly of the combination.

The Daily Reporter of Fond du Lac, after speaking of the different selections on the program, says: "Taken as a whole the concert was one of the best ever heard in the city and the college boys should be complimented on their ability as vocal artists." Other papers where they have been have been equally complimentary and there is no question but what they give a first class entertainment in every respect. Following is the program which they will produce here:

- PART 1.
1. Instrumental.
 2. Vivo La Ripon.
 3. Solo. As the Dawn Cantor Benjamin J. Elert.
 4. Reading. Court Scene from Shakespeare's Hamlet. David Thomas.
 5. Solo. Good-bye. Test Arnold E. Knop.
 6. Solo. Floating Mid the Lilies. Samuel T. Kidder, Jr. and Club.
 7. Guitar Solo. Selected. Edgar H. Zobel.
- PART 2.
1. On the Move March.
 2. Reading. The Boy Orator of Zepher. Richard Davis.
 3. Trombone Solo. Faute a. The Palmis. Muscagni b. Intermezzo. Mr. Zobel.
 4. a. Dorothy Duomo. b. Lanching Song.
 5. Solo. Selected.
 6. Duet. The Battle Eye. Bonheur Messrs. Elert and Knop.
 7. Soldier's Chorus.

Tried to Break Jail.

Young and Gustack, the two men who were sentenced to two years in the penitentiary at Wausau for burglarly, made an attempt to break jail on Thursday while waiting to be conveyed to the state institution by Sheriff Little. They were allowed the run of the corridor of the county jail and one of them had a small piece of iron in his possession with which he managed to scrape out the mortar and remove a couple of bricks. Their attempt was discovered, however, before they had made any alarming headway, and the sheriff left the same day with them for Wausau, where they were landed safely without further mishap.

Evangelistic Services Begun.

As had been previously announced a series of evangelistic services began last Sunday in the G. A. R. hall under the auspices of the Christian church or (Disciples of Christ) and are being conducted by Evangelists C. H. DeVoe and H. K. Shields of Indiana, who are here under the direction of the State Board of Wisconsin.

The Evangelists were greeted by good audiences at both the Sunday services as has also been the one during the evenings of this week.

Mr. DeVoe is a clear logical and earnest speaker and interests all who hear him.

Mr. Shields has a clear, rich tenor voice and sings to the delight and inspiration of all. These services are to continue indefinitely and many important religious themes will be discussed. A children's service will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. to which all children are cordially invited.

Blancher-Loser.

This evening at eight o'clock occurs the marriage of Dr. W. O. Blancher and Miss Harriett Loser. Rev. A. L. Putnam will perform the ceremony, which will occur at River View hospital, where Miss Loser has been employed as head nurse. Only immediate friends of the contracting parties will be present. Both the young people are new comers in our city, Miss Loser having been employed as nurse at the hospital all the time she has been here, while Dr. Blancher has been associated with Dr. Humphrey in the practice of medicine. The Tribune extends the heartiest of congratulations and wishes the young people a long and happy married life.

A Farmer's Combine.

Appleton Post.—The movement is on to effect an organization of farmers for mutual protection and to keep the prices of farm products up to the top notch. It is reported that branches of such general organization have already been formed in ten counties of this state—Rock, LaFayette, Iowa, Sauk, Adams, Juneau, Wausau, Columbia, Richland, Eau Claire, Chippewa, Dunn, Burnett, Washburn, Trempealeau, Wood and Clark.

The movement may go on for awhile but it will ultimately fail because there are too "many men of many minds" to render it successful. But if a successful combination of farmers were possible, we submit that, once formed, it would effectually seal their mouths against other trusts against which they have inveighed bitterly and justly. The man who declared "I am opposed to all monopolies that I can't control" voiced the sentiment of others as well as his own.

Blue Rock Scores.

The following scores were made by the members of the gun club at their shoot last Sunday: Hanneman, 55 out of 75; Bartholomew, 48 out of 75; Brown, 48 out of 75; Masou, 49 out of 75; Drumb, 51 out of 75; Demitz, 29 out of 75; D. D. Conway, 26 out of 50; Rondenut, 21 out of 50.

One More Lodge.

W. H. Woodworth of Black River Falls is in the city this week organizing lodge of Beavers. The new lodge is an insurance order, and Mr. Woodworth reports that he has met with good success in securing members in this city.

REVENUE LAWS.

Empty Cigar Boxes Cannot Be Used Upon Shelves for Decorative Purposes.

H. W. Royer, of Merrill, deputy revenue collector for this district, recently stated that he was kept pretty busy looking after people who bought out saloons and failed to take out new licenses. When a transfer of a saloon is made the government requires that the purchaser shall take out a new license, and anyone failing to do this has himself liable.

Another order he had recently received from Washington was that empty cigar boxes must be destroyed. They can no longer be used for display purposes, if they have trade marks, labels or other decorations upon them.

The new order, it is expected, will cause a stir among dealers. Boxes which had been emptied of cigars, or empty, unstamped, labeled boxes sent out from factories for decorative purposes were used by dealers to fill up shelves and give stores appearances of fullness. This no longer can be done, according to the ruling of the internal revenue department at Washington.

According to the new order, internal revenue officers, the country over, will begin on May 1, a movement against the use of empty cigar boxes for decorative purposes or trade attractors by tobaccoists, druggists and all other merchants who handle cigars. The order is based upon a recent interpretation of section 2455 of the revised statutes dealing with the disposition of empty cigar boxes and packages containing tobacco of every description. It will be unlawful for any dealer to make any use of empty cigar boxes, if there remains upon the box either the government revenue stamp, the caution notice required on all boxes or the brand mark including the factory and federal district number.

The order says dealers must be punished if boxes with any of the marks enumerated are displayed. The punishment is a fine from $50 to $500.

The ruling of the commissioner, it is understood, was made as the result of numerous complaints that the law was being violated, at least technically, all over the country.

Approaching Theatrical Event.

The appearance of Mr. Shipman's Company of Shakespearean players headed by the brilliant star Miss Charlotte Burnett at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, April 13, for one performance of that sparkling Shakespearean comedy, "Twelfth Night," is a matter of congratulation and promises to be the red letter event of the local season.

Mr. Shipman has never disappointed his public, but has at all times supplied a smart and delightful entertainment. His companies have been at the head of the list of new and his productions artistic and when necessary massive.

The present production of "Twelfth Night" is the best of the many this enterprising young American manager has made.

For this star, Mr. Shipman has secured the services of Miss Charlotte Burnett, a lady who has had a thorough schooling in the best New York companies, notably those of Richard Mansfield and Julius Marlowe. Miss Burnett is giving a highly appreciable performance of "Twelfth Night" and is supported by an almost "All Star" cast, including Mr. Geo. Seybolt, John L. Saphron, Joseph Wilson, E. J. McCarthy, and others equally well known.

Mr. Shipman's praiseworthy attempt to vindicate the superiority of Shakespearean comedy over the horse play of modern farce, in its successful issue, one of the many symptoms, which show the public taste is wholesome at the eve.

There has been a large guarantee raised by subscription and sale of seats will open for subscribers Monday, April 10, at 8:30 a. m.

The President Vacates.

The redoubtable Teddy has started on his vacation, which he will spend in the west, and the readers of the daily papers may now look for some thing starting in the hand of the setting sun. A reliable press dispatch announces that the president will not nothing but bear meat, bacon and slacks during his hunting tour in the west, which is evidence that the president is a brave man. Bacon and slacks are not so bad for a hundred pounds or so, the of course nobody would care to make a steady diet of them, but when you add bears meat to the menu, it is rather crowding the menu. No doubt the president, who formerly lived in the west, where he used to go out in the morning and kill a grizzly for breakfast, has often, during the busy busy incident in appointing fourth class postmasters, hunkered for a nice July bear steak, made odorous and aromatic by roasting over a fire of alfalfa chips, and the change from the care of office to the freedom of the woods will be a great one.

It is stated on reliable authority that the west is a great country, and a few weeks sojourn there in the rarified atmosphere often changes ones view of life very materially. They say that the muzzle of a Winchester rifle in the hands of a hostile highwayman looks as large as the mouth of the Mammoth cave owing to the magnifying power of the air, which is remarkably clear. Also that a man with a dollar in his pocket often feels as rich as he would here in Wisconsin with a half a million. This latter is partly an account of the quality of the booze they dispense in that locality. It may be that these queer partial account for the stories that come from that section of the country. The president has our best wishes on his trip. We have not as yet ever held the position of president of the United States, but they say the salary is not sufficient to support the man who holds down the job, and as a consequence we know just how he feels, as we have held several jobs of the same kind. We understand, however, that his salary will go right on during his two months vacation, which will no doubt be a great comfort to him, and help very materially in the enjoyment of the trip. He is always enough to get a vacation, if you are willing to dispense with the salary while you are gone, but it is often hard to convince your employer that your salary should continue on duty while you are away incorporating. Too much argument along this line may at times result in your vacation being permanent.

Church Notices.

Soon Commence Building.
The Grand Rapids Foundry company expect to commence the erection of their new foundry and machine shop in the near future, there being some little delay in getting the plans from the architect. The plans are being prepared by Otto Uehling, an uncle of Oscar Uehling of this city, who is a member of the firm. Mr. Uehling has made a specialty of drafting plans of this sort and has created some of the principal shops in Milwaukee, where he resides.

Dyspeptic Cynics

When we say to you that modern science has produced an absolute cure for Dyspepsia, Indigestion and kindred ills, we can use no words that have not been used already in telling of other remedies. Consequently, if you have tried other remedies and found them unsuccessful, you may be inclined to regard our statements with cynicism. But when we say to you "We know that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will cure the most stubborn case," and we back up our knowledge with a positive guarantee, you cannot doubt us. That is exactly what we say!

Read What Mrs. Jarvis Says

"Rexall Tablets are simply wonderful. I don't believe that any one could suffer more from a bad stomach than I have during the past few years, but Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets have cured me. My general health is now excellent and I can not express the satisfaction I feel from the relief I have experienced. I want everybody to know what this wonderful remedy has done for me. I can recommend them to everyone who is afflicted with indigestion.—Mrs. Rose Jarvis, Leominster, Mass."

Mistress Rosemary Allyn

By MILLICENT E. MANN

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

I walked down the path. I had but gone a short distance when I heard a shrill voice call:

"Wait a little, the lady bids you wait."

It was the old dame. I waited until she hobbled near, thinking the dame had sent a message. I was mistaken. It was more folly the lady wished.

"Take your fish, my Lord of the World," the nurse rumbled from between loose teeth, as she held out the basket of trout I had left on the grass. "I'll answer for it that you'll get more fish for sup today than those damn, my Lord—my Lord Fishing-men."

Then she ejaculated, echoed in the words by a fresh young voice. Mildly was enjoying herself immensely.

Such had been my meeting with Mistress Rosemary Allyn.

I laughed now as I recalled it. Mistress Rosemary Allyn thought me a bore, and because I dressed as the villagers, that I must be one of them. "Sbait!" she might have said with half an eye, had she not been so impressed in her own little temper, that my foreignness was of the most, and my linen being from the handloom to name was as she showed a texture as any to be had in London, any, or even Paris. Again I laughed as I looked abroad. For as far as eye could see from the entrance we were upon, I looked upon my own hand.

CHAPTER III.

A Pair of Blue Eyes.

We reached a point where two roads met. I took the lower one, telling till that I should be home soon. Inclination and desire to again see Mistress Rosemary Allyn pulled my horse's bridle reins in the direction of Castle front.

Castle front was the only dwelling

I received a thrust in the shoulder.

I had my back to the door. The woman faced it. I read in the stern lines of her too heavily lowered eyelids that some one stood in its entrance. I turned, and saw a youth beside whose beauty the bold dash of the maid's faded as the tawny beauty must always before the greater when brought together. He looked not more than sixteen. He was blond, eyes, wavy, and as exquisitely appointed as a court beauty. Venetian lace fell over his jeweled fingers—ribbons knotted his low shoes. From a wrist a pounce ball dangled and wafted all the odors of Arabia. He was a dazzling sight to behold.

"Miss Rosemary's brother?"

gasp the maid, and then she flopped into the easy chair.

"To what, sir, am I indebted for the honor of seeing you in this poor room?"

"The honor, sir, is mine," I replied, striving to make time in which some reasonable excuse should come to me for my presence in his sister's room.

"But why, sir, why?" he asked again.

"No why," I answered bluntly. "I'll be curious, as you will."

"Curiosity?" he echoed. "A woman's excuse. And what pray is that doing in your pocket?"

He touched with his sword, which he had been playing with since his advent into the room, the heel of the slipper sticking from where I had dropped it.

"My property, brought and paid for," I answered jealously.

"Brought from a thieving maid?" he said, while he glanced scornfully at her, who with her handkerchief to her face seemed doubled up with fears and tears. "Since you value it so highly, perhaps you'll not mind fighting for it?"

"I saw that you are unarmed," I replied with a shrug.

"That can be soon remedied," he said.

He stepped to the wall and took a rapier from the rack hanging there. He held it out hilt to hilt with the one that he had, measuring them.

"You see they are alike," he said.

I bowed and advanced the sword—I could do no less.

"Surely not here?" I made one more protest.

"Oh, hilt!" the maid cried.

"Silence, you have brought it upon yourself," he said to her. To me with a bow.

"Tis as good a place as another."

I intended to lesson him quickly and have done with the business, which conferred no honor upon me. Back and forth we swept. I would not forget he was her brother! I soon found that his slender wrists were like steel, and that he was as agile as a cat. I was marvelling at his dexterity, thrusts and parries, when he took advantage of my momentary aberration. I received a thrust in the shoulder. He lowered his sword.

"First blood!" cried the maid automatically. "It is enough."

"Seek her, too, and ye shall find," she said smiling audaciously. "But would you not like to see the bird's cage—I mean the Castle?"

I acquiesced and followed her for very idleness I think, through the portals into the house. We passed many rooms of old and quaint furnishings. We came to the end of a long hall in a wing separated from the rest.

She threw open a door in a mysterious, sly manner, and said in a near long hall. It was much nearer than our last (these lay at the salvage of vast woods) if one could have bridged the steep and ragged ravine which separated the two castles. As it was, the road led one some miles in and out of tortuous lands.

I came near the castle. It loomed still and quaint as a deserted house. I got off my horse and left him to graze. I sat down on a boulder not many yards from its postern gate. I supposed I was hidden from the eyes of its inhabitants, yet from my place of vantage could see if perchance any one, either concealed or bent in through the narrow portals of the gate, I had not been there many minutes sitting with my chin resting upon my hands, when a voice said:

"What need to watch the cage when the bird has flown away?"

It went to the place: people could see upon one without a sound.

I started and my face flushed. Quickly I assumed an indifferent air, for one does not care to wear one's heart upon one's sleeve for daws to peck at, and certainly this was a day—a most portentious day—to be beside me, I was a regimented maid with bold black eyes, which peered saucily into mine who had spoken. She was capped, aproned, and had all the other accessories that go to make up the toilet of a fashionable lady's maid.

"Bird?" What bird, my pretty maid?" I asked.

"As if the gentleman did not know?" she said.

"I know that you're a deucedly pretty one," I affirmed, and I kissed her cheek.

"Oh, hilt!" she cried, with a mock show of indignation. "What would Mistress Rosemary say?"

To that terse question I had no answer.

"I love where I may," I said instead. Then, "My good maid, tell me where Mistress Rosemary Allyn has gone—"

If gone, she inquired, did she know?

"Where would a fine lady go?" she said.

"You have a glib tongue, my girl," I put in sharply.

"I serve a glib mistress," she retorted as sharply with a courtesy.

"I have a message for her," I suggested.

"Let me be the messenger," she said, "since I follow her tomorrow."

"No," I returned. "I prefer to give it into her own hands."

"Well, London, at last she admitted, with a shrug of her pretty shoulders, where she had spent many hours of course—London the home of handsome women and gallant men. London should suit you, girl, and you suit London down to the ground," she added with a toss of her head, and quick change of expression as though to imply a compliment.

"Whereabouts in London?" I persistently asked.

"Seek and ye shall find," she briefly answered.

"If I should wish to see the maid," I said, and I gave her a glance meant to imply most taking, "where shall I find her?"

"Seek her, too, and ye shall find," she said smiling audaciously. "But would you not like to see the bird's cage—I mean the Castle?"

Many people have been rejoicing that the state because it has been proposed to pass a bill to prohibit the selling of cigarettes, smoking to imagine that the passage of such a bill would do away with the evil of using these pernicious combinations of paper and tobacco. We feel that these people are rejoicing too soon. People who have paid any attention to such matters feel that the cigarette evil is one that cannot be abolished by legislation. There is now a law which prohibits the selling of cigarettes to minors, and yet it is a fact that the most of these things are used by the younger element, who have not yet reached their majority. The average boy who smokes cigarettes does not buy them, but manufactures them himself, and should the proposed law be passed there would be nothing to prevent him from doing so in the future. The law, if passed, will be a dead letter, and the legislature might better turn its attention to something more practical. Every boy on the street knows the evils of cigarette smoking; he has had it preached to him from the pulpit, told to him by his parents, and probably lectured on the subject by his school teacher, besides which there are plenty of horrible examples brought to his notice every day, and if he continues in the vice after all these influences it is doubtful if any legislation on the subject will stop him.

Many papers throughout the state are strenuously opposing the bill before the legislature which proposes to give to three men the right to build co-operative and control the flow of the Wisconsin river. They claim that it is a big graft, and that the right had not ought to be granted to any person. There is no question that if the exclusive right were given to those men, without the people who own the land having any compensation for their property, it would be a bad thing, but we understand that this is not the scheme. Any land that is damaged or occupied by the projectors will have to be paid for, the same as is always the case, so that it is doubtful if anybody would suffer by the improvement. In order to bring about these great improvements it is necessary for somebody to take hold of them who has the energy and desire combined with a little cash, to push them to completion, and the present case is no exception to the rule. Every man who lives on the Wisconsin river and has paid any attention to the matter knows that it would be a good thing if the flow of the river could be regulated so that it could be kept somewhere near constant, and in the event of its being so it would greatly increase the effectiveness of the water power along the river, and thereby benefit every person who is in any way connected with them. One of the missions of the legislators is to see that the rights of the people are protected, and this case should not be any exception to the general rule.

The News at Marshfield is advocating the feasibility of allowing the people of that city to vote on whether they want the waterworks and electric light system at that place purchased by the city. Since the plant was purchased by the council and the sale subsequently knocked out by the courts, there has been much talk both pro and con about the matter, and each side has the will of the people. There is no question but that if the matter was put to a vote it would settle the case as to which side the majority favored in the matter, and is no more than right where such an amount of money is involved.

"Twelfth Night."

The gathering together of a company of actors and actresses competent to properly portray a Shakespearean play is a far greater task than most people imagine. This is particularly true of "Twelfth Night" surely the cleverest and most entertaining of all the thirty-seven plays written by the immortal Bard.

Mr. Joseph Stipmann, the New York manager, who is this season giving a sumptuous revival of this play, congratulates himself on having what is everywhere conceded to be the finest theatrical organization ever offered for the approval of the critical American public. Each player has been selected for his or her peculiar fitness for the various roles, thus making a performance which for smoothness and attention to detail, has not been surpassed in the memory of the proverbial "oldest inhabitant." Our representative theatre-goers will assemble in force to witness this artistic production when it comes to the Grand Opera House Thursday, April 13. Prices, $100, 75, 50, 35 and 25c.

The City Election.

There was not a very spirited contest in this city election day, the only contest being on justice of the peace, in which the entire city voted. In James Keyes won out over T. J. Cooper by a majority of 40. The vote on justice in the different wards was as follows: 1st ward, Cooper, 27, Keyes 41; 2nd ward, Cooper 46, Keyes 37; 3rd ward, Cooper 44, Keyes 32; 4th ward, Cooper 21, Keyes 54; 5th ward, Cooper 32, Keyes 27; 6th ward, Cooper 38, Keyes 14; 7th ward, Cooper 25, Keyes 20; 8th ward, Cooper 15, Keyes 4.

In the first ward M. J. Slattery was elected alderman over David Lutz, Jr., by a vote of 38 to 25. In the 2nd ward A. J. Hasbrouck was elected supervisor over H. Bookclier by a vote of 85 to 45. Frank Smith was elected alderman over W. L. Scott by a vote of 72 to 42. In the 3rd ward Ed L. men was elected supervisor over Jos. Rick by a vote of 47 to 20.

In the 4th ward L. Porter was elected alderman over John P. Henry by a vote of 61 to 17.

In the 5th ward Fred Bosart was elected alderman over Jos. Lukasek by a vote of 220 to 28. In the other wards there was no contest.

In the county, so far as the returns have been received, Robert Morris is ahead of M. Murphy for the office of superintendent of schools although there are several towns to hear from.

NEIGHBORHOOD NOTES.

Stevens Point Journal.—District Attorney Theo. W. Bruzau and the sheriff of Wood county arrived in this city on the afternoon train Tuesday in charge of Paul Goodick and Wm. Young, both of whom were charged with burglary. When arraigned both pleaded guilty and said they had no remarks to make as to why sentence should not be pronounced. Thereupon each was sentenced to the state prison for a term of two years, the first day to be solitary confinement.

Wausau News.—At a meeting of the Liederkreis society, held last Tuesday evening, it was decided to engage Bach's band and orchestra of Milwaukee for the summer. The band held here in the summer. The band consists of twenty-four pieces and is considered one of the best in the state. A rate of one fare plus 50c, for the round trip has been secured from the railroad and the committee on railroads is endeavoring to arrange for a number of excursions. John Klinge has succeeded Louis Marchetti as first president, the latter having resigned.

Lettoria received from Dr. J. O. Coniff brings the information that he is now in California, having been placed in charge of several engineering crews who are working for the government on the proposed irrigation of thousands of acres of arid lands all through that western country. The irrigation through the west is carried out much on the same plan as the proposed drainage through this section of the country, with the exception of the "scrapping."

Predicts Good Wheat Year.

Watertown Times.—Experienced farmers contend that a winter with heavy falls of snow portends a good crop year. Deep snow has been on the ground the past winter continuously and it is claimed this is as good as a coat of heavy fertilizer and speaks well for a heavy harvest.

The 1904 crop of wheat throughout large sections of the United States was almost a total failure and in consequence the price of wheat has been comparatively higher than any other cereal. Wheat and rye have commanded excellent prices ever since the harvest and it is only reasonable to expect them to maintain a fairly high level, on the next crop—higher price than the average for several years past. Other grains have not attained high prices on this crop. In view of these conditions a large acreage of spring wheat will be put in by farmers in this vicinity.

It Does More Than That.

Gloria Lung Balsam not only removes the irritation but it heals the throat and aids nature in rebuilding organs of speech and breathing. It is made of healing balms and is best for children. Sold by Daily Drug & Jewelry Co.

Adulterated Pies.

The practice of adulteration, or substitution, has been rather queerly shown by the analysis of an alleged lemon pie offered for sale in a Chicago restaurant. The pie came from a big pie factory and was one of several thousand similar pies sold by the factory to Chicago restaurants. Analysis showed that the pie contained neither lemon, butter nor eggs. It was colored with aniline, a chemical acid gave it the necessary sour taste, and the paste was made from starch and there was more of the proper ingredients of coal tar than of vegetables or animal matter in it, and some of the ingredients are poisonous in large doses.

Another Swindle.

A new swindle was perpetrated on the farmers near Barnab one day last week by two strangers. The two men started out with a wagon load of hams, which they had shipped into Barnab, and visiting the grangers, sold them for 75c to $1.00 each. When the farmer's wives went to fry ham and eggs next morning they found, after cutting into the hams, that they were decayed so badly as to give the impression that they had been soaked in methuselah's time. A warrant was issued for the strangers' arrest but they evaded the sheriff and are probably selling hams in some other section of the state.

Wisconsin Club.

At Portland, Ore., there had been organized a "Wisconsin Society of Oregon." The object of the organization is to promote the development of the state of Oregon by the dissemination of information throughout the state of Wisconsin, the furnishing of information and assistance to visitors and to promote closer social relations, etc. It is estimated by the society that there are 15,000 Wisconsin people now in Oregon, and they are trying to tell the rest of us back here in poor, benighted Wisconsin what a good thing they have struck out there. It might be a good idea to form a society in Wisconsin to co-operate with the Oregon society, whose object would be to help busted fortune seekers back to this state from Oregon, where they could again engage in the occupation of earning a living, a thing that many have found a difficulty in doing since going to the western states.
